Article 12 – Non-adherence to Applicable Responsibilities

The ethos of this policy with regards to articles 8, 9, 10 and 11 is that ‘Right’ and ‘Responsibilities’ go hand in hand. In the interests of a fair and harmonious community, the philosophy of the Centre is for members to earn their rights by fulfilling their responsibilities, furthermore, they are expected to continue to fulfil their responsibilities in order to continue to enjoy their rights.

Non-adherence to the applicable responsibilities in this document is a serious breach of the Reglamento de Régimen Interior. The Centre reserves the right to terminate the contract of a member of staff, or of a paying client (family) should they be proved to have contravened the terms of this document.

Article 13 – Philosophy Underpinning the Management of Behaviour

The ethos underpinning the Behaviour Management policy at The Mallorca International School is difficulties with undesirable behaviour are better avoided than solved.

The school places a high value on the development of personal skills - positive attitudes and behaviours, a strong sense of responsibility, adaptability to situations and a genuine interest in making personal progress as well as helping others to reach their goals. Students with these skills are better equipped to make the right decisions.

In the context of lessons, where teachers plan to meet the needs of the students, where learning techniques are varied and effective, where style is positive and purposeful, and where teachers use personal skills to strike a rapport and mutual trust with students, behaviour problems are rare.

In the case that action must be taken following undesirable behaviour, the school believes that the self-respect of the student should not be damaged in public and that action is measured.

Article 14 – Positive Behaviour Management

The International School of Mallorca believes that the pursuit of positive behaviour and happiness at school is the key to all other objectives. Positive behaviour strategies underpin the Behaviour Policy.

Rewards: It is crucial to reinforce good and positive behaviour as much as possible. The Mallorca International School believes that in the long term students must have a high level of intrinsic motivation to succeed in school and life rather than rely on extrinsic rewards. Such extrinsic rewards are used, therefore, sparingly. Staff should wherever possible utilise methods of reward that will stimulate intrinsic motivation; extravagant verbal praise, positive body language, public appreciation/recognition (in front of class, student's parents, another teacher, head teacher) and award of responsibility.

Mentoring: It is also crucial that staff mentor students to be reflective regarding their behaviour. If a student displays good or positive behaviour, after positive reinforcement, the member of staff should prompt the student to think about how this good or positive behaviour has made them feel. Prompt them to foster a motivation to repeat. Further to this, ask the student why the behaviour was so good/positive in order that they understand completely (and conversely understand why the opposite type of behaviour may lead to an undesirable situation and feeling).

Article 15 – Non-adherence to Positive Behaviour Policy

Occasionally, despite all best efforts, conflicts may arise and students may display undesirable behaviour at times. The Mallorca International School believes that it is imperative that the teacher responsible for the student(s) at the time of the problem takes control of the situation and utilises their own behaviour management strategies unless the incident is particularly serious (at which point it would be passed to the head teacher).

Negative behaviour management strategies (to be used in the case of a non-serious incident): In the first instance a student should be given a warning and the chance to correct their ways. It is helpful to use the '3-Step Approach' in order that the student (a) understands exactly what was not acceptable, (b) reflect on how it made them/others feel, and (c) considers more positive ways of dealing with similar situations in the future. Should there be a repeat of such behaviour staff should consider repeating this step depending on the timescale between the first and second incident. In general a third repetition should trigger a change in strategy. Staff should apply this low-level warning system in their own way conducive to their style of teaching thus should have ownership over the process. It is essential that staff maintain a rapport with the students and a high level of mutual trust and respect and should use their personal skills to achieve this.

Strategies to be applied in case of persistent negative behaviour: Should a student fail to respond to the process of being mentored and continues to show the same negative behaviour despite understanding what it is they are doing and why it is not acceptable, a greater pressure must be applied. Until now the strategy has very much been based on looking toward an intrinsic desire to 'put right' the situation. At this stage the tutor must be informed (in the case that the problem occurs under the care of another member of staff) and also the parents/carers must be informed. A meeting should be convened in order to once again talk about the 'what', 'why not' and 'better way of working'. Personal targets and helpful strategies should be agreed between the student, tutor and parents/carers that all feel will have a good chance of success. These strategies will very much vary according to the student and situation. A record must be kept of the agreed targets and strategies by the tutor and closely monitored. For a period, communication must be maintained between the tutor and parents/carers according to how quickly the difficulties subside.

Referral to the head teacher: Should a student fail to respond to the targets and strategies agreed the matter should be referred to the head teacher. At this point the head teacher will repeat the process in more detail, though, will formalise by creating a behaviour contract that the student must completely understand and agree to. The head teacher will continue to liaise with the tutor, subject teachers, parents/carers and indeed the student until the difficulties are resolved. Any serious incident should be referred to the head teacher without the necessity to pass through previous stages of the system.

Important: It is imperative that at any point when working with students who have displayed undesirable behaviour that they know and understand clearly what the undesirable behaviour was and why it was undesirable. Further to this, the self-respect of the student should never be compromised by publically shaming them in front of an audience.

Article 16 – Procedures for Making a Complaint

Mallorca International School believes that a synergetic relationship with parents is key to achieving the school's objectives. The views of parents are most welcome and form part of the school's self-review structure. It is important that parents feel that their views are both welcome and valued. In an open environment such as this complaints are few and far between, moreover, communication is positive and constructive towards making progression should a difficulty arise.

The school does recognise, however, that a trusted structure must be in place should a parent wish to make a formal complaint.

Stage 1 – Concerns

If a parent is concerned about an educational or pastoral matter they should, in the first instance, discuss the matter with their son/daughter's class tutor. Dialogue with parents is most welcome and most matters of concern can be dealt with in this way. All teachers work very hard to ensure that each student is happy at school, and is making good progress; they always want to know if there is a problem so that they can take action before the problem seriously affects the student's progress. Parents are asked to attempt to communicate concerns after collection time at the end of the day or by phoning the school office to book an appointment. Parents should avoid attempting to pass on concerns before school unless time-critical.

If a parent is concerned about an administrative matter they should, in the first instance, inform the Head of Administration. Likewise, the administration team work very hard to guarantee the well running of the school and facilitating good communication is key to their success. It is always preferable to book an appointment with the Head of Administration who is well informed.

Stage 2 – Unresolved Concerns and Complaints

Where a parent feels that a situation has not been resolved through contact with the class tutor or the Head of Administration, or that their concern is of a sufficiently serious nature (a complaint), they should make an appointment to discuss it with the Head Teacher. The head teacher considers any such concerns/complaints very seriously and investigates each case thoroughly. Most issues are normally satisfied at this stage.

Should a parent have a complaint about the head teacher, or the way in which they have handled a complaint against a member of staff, a formal complaint may be submitted as outlined below.

Stage 3 – Formal Complaint

A formal complaint should be made to the General Manager of Mallorca International School. This complaint must be made in writing, stating the nature of the complaint and how the school has handled it to date. The parent should send this written complaint to the General Manager via the School Office.

The General Manager must consider all written complaints within three weeks of receipt. Where possible a meeting is arranged a to discuss the complaint, and an invite is made to the person making the complaint to attend the meeting, so that he/she can explain their complaint in more detail. The school gives the complainant at least three days' notice of the meeting. Should it not be possible, or appropriate, to convene a meeting the views of the complainant will be solicited in more detail by means of a phone call.

The aim of the investigation will always be to resolve the complaint and achieve reconciliation between the school and the complainant. After hearing all the evidence, the General Manager makes an informed and careful decision duly informing the parent in writing.

It has to be recognised that the complainant may not necessarily be satisfied with the outcome. It may only be possible to establish the facts and make recommendations that will satisfy the complainant that his/her complaint has been taken seriously.

Stage 4 - Appeal

Should a parent disagree with the General Manager's decision, and they have further evidence that the decision is incorrect, they may finally lodge an appeal. This appeal must be made in writing, stating clearly the grounds for appeal and should be submitted to the School Office.

Any appeal will be presided over by an 'Appeal Committee' which will be convened by the General Manager. The Appeal Committee may or may not incorporate the Head Teacher depending on the nature of the complaint as well as any other person of stature that will be able to provide expert advice. Matters should be dealt with the upmost care and attention.

The decision of the Appeal Committee is final and parents do not have a general right of a further appeal should their initial appeal not be upheld.

It must be acknowledged that it is possible at times for parents to genuinely disagree with school actions, policies or decisions and that can be impossible to satisfy every single parent in such a diverse society.

Monitoring and Review

This policy should be reviewed as standard a minimum of once every two years.

Date of implementation: August 2018

Policy review date: August 2020
